Dear Victor,

There is a wonderful African saying that states 'Until the lion tells his story the hunter will always tell his tale' and how true that is when we reflect on the journey of our forbears.

Your contribution to telling the story, not only bring to life some of the experiences that were never told or at best forgotten, but it also invokes our sense of thanksgiving.

Your work also plays a critical role in enhancing current cultural understanding and awareness and I encourage you to continue this splendid work.

We certainly appreciated your contribution to Suffolk's African History Month 2005, hosted at the New Wolsey Theatre to a capacity audience, whose rousing enjoyment I must say was well heard. Tying in so well with the ICE Project, the climate was truly set.

We wish you every success in the future and extend to you our thanks once again.

With kind regards
